PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

There are two variations of the Anthropology major: (a) General Anthropology and (b) Anthropology with a concentration in Applied Anthropology. The General Anthropology major has a moderately flexible curriculum. The major with concentration in Applied Anthropology is more structured. Both versions require 11 courses, with the same 5 core courses. Ideally, students will take a progression of courses beginning with ANTH 1101, the foundation course. Both variations of the major culminate with ANTH 4601, the senior seminar, which should be taken right before graduation. However, students have flexibility in designing their own program of study in consultation with an advisor, so students declaring as sophomores and even early in their junior year can usually finish their degree on schedule.
