

Student Learning Outcomes

College: Liberal Arts & Sciences

Department: Political Science

Degree Program: Bachelor of Arts in Political Science

- 1) Students should have an understanding of the fundamental concepts, terms, and principles of the discipline, including concepts from the sub-fields of American politics, international politics, and comparative politics.
- 2) Students should be able to apply analytic skills to a specific research question or public issue, using appropriate quantitative or qualitative methodologies to develop evidence-based conclusions about the connections between political processes and political outcomes.
- 3) Students should be able to explain a political science topic clearly in written English, using appropriate language and grammar and presenting the line of argument in a logical manner.
- 4) Students should be able to explain a political science topic clearly in spoken English, using appropriate oral communication skills to present substantive information in a coherent manner.